our love for
Grower Champagne

More than any other wine region in the world, Champagne France has turned into a luxury brand as a region and for its wine. At the heart of this region are humble farms that have stayed true to their love of the region through many hardships and wars over the years. The way Champagne is produced – méthode champenoise – dates back to 1662, yet only in the last twenty years have we seen these small farmers take a stance to produce artistically crafted wines that showcase their villages within the greater champagne region. The wines are true expressions of the region and the people who farm its land.

CHENIN BLANC

Chenin Blanc

Chenin Blanc is a bit of a chameleon – as it has the potential to have many different personalities and styles. In the right hands, the wine can be produced to be light and vibrantly bone dry; yet by another producer, the wine can be rich, textured and sometimes sweet. Famed from the Loire Valley in France and small regions such as Montlouis, Vouvray, and Jasnières, Chenin Blanc truly stands on its pedestal and takes its place among the world's great white wines.

our love for
Syrah

Every varietal — when produced by real artisans who care deeply about the farming of their vines, as well as a dedication to passionate winemaking — has the potential to produce wines that can take your breath away. Syrah should be rustic but also have a delicate side. Great producers work hard to farm steep vineyards and work their vines by hand. The motherland is the Northern Rhône; and the rocky slopes of Côte Rôtie, Hermitage, Crozes-Hermitage, Cornas and Saint-Joseph also truly have a voice and an identity that can inspire.
